PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.- Joseph Fels, head of the Fels Naptha Soap Company and advocate of the single tax, died early DARCE AT ASTOR FOR CHARITY, street. Death was due to pneumonia, which followed an attack of neuritis. Mr. Fels was 61 years old.

Mr. Fels made the startling announcenent four years ago that he had amassed a fortune by robbing the people and was prepared to subscribe liberally to a conscience fund. He attributed his success to economic conditions; he proposed to get rid of his fortune and to prevent others from following in his path by changing these conditions. Therefore he advocaled the single tax and would spend nothing except in the interest of that re-

The Joseph Fels Fund.

He began by creating the Joseph Fels Fund of America. Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland was treasurer. On the ad-visory committee were William Lloyd Garrison, George Foster Peabody, Henry George, Jr., Lincoln Steffens and other social reformers. He pledged $25,000 annually for five years and offered to subscribe as much more as single tax en-thusiasts could get from others. He did the same thing in England. Upon every occasion Mr. Fels launched into a bitter attack upon himself for having taken advantage of the conditions that made him wealthy.

Coming to New York a year later he spoke his opinions at a dinner of the Twilight Club, where Hudson Maxim presided and Count Leo Tolstoy was a guest Cleveland Moffett, the science fund of Mr. Fels might well be used in part at least for the suppression of the drug habit. "The gaseous oratory of the speaker is longer what they were when Henry George wrote his book on the single tax theory. Count Tolstoy poured oil on the waters by suggesting that Mr. Fels use some of his ill gotten gains in promoting international peace.

Despite the cynical remarks of Mr.

Moffett and the suggestion of Count Tol-
